Building your own customized network: take advantage of a network of curators working for you, consuming their curated information.

Collecting, organizing, connecting, attributing, interpreting, summarizing the vast amount of information that comes across your desk/ feed/ books/ articles/etc. for yourself!

Consciously become the curator for others for a particular niche, area of expertise or interest. Disseminate resources, add value, put in perspective, create connections, present in a different light/ media/ language.

Real time curation allows you to be part of an event, that you physically might not be attending. Or... allows you to be the bridge for others to participate at an event where you are present, but your network is not.

Silvia Rosenthal Tolisano ~ Langwitches.org/blog